About The Area:

Elstow is a picturesque village in Bedfordshire with a rich history, situated just to the south of Bedford's town centre.

At the heart of the village stands the Grade I listed Elstow Abbey, which was originally established in the 11th century as a Benedictine nunnery and remains one of the area's most notable landmarks.

The village is also known as the birthplace of John Bunyan, the author of The Pilgrim's Progress. His influence can still be seen around the village, particularly at the historic Moot Hall.

Although Elstow has a quiet, rural feel, it benefits from excellent transport links, Bedford's town centre, well-regarded schools, and the mainline railway station are all within easy reach. The nearby A421 also connects quickly to major routes including the A1 and M1, making travel and commuting convenient.
