An exquisite and unspoilt example of a meticulously restored 17th-century coach house and stables, this Grade II listed home is set within beautifully maintained, secluded gardens in the idyllic and tranquil setting of Landford Wood.

The principal rooms retain a wealth of original features, such as exposed timbers, brickwork and Quatrafoil windows. A substantial entrance hall creates a striking first impression, while the superb flow and versatility of the accommodation help distinguish this property from many other period homes. There are four elegant reception rooms comprising a formal sitting room with an inviting fireplace, a library, an impressive dining room with French doors to the rear terrace, and a sizeable office or snug.

The central kitchen and breakfast room is a standout feature, stylishly appointed with sleek Quartz worksurfaces, extensive contemporary cabinetry, quality integrated appliances, a pantry, and a generous central island, creating an ideal space for everyday dining and entertaining. A cloakroom completes the ground floor layout.

The first floor offers four beautifully presented double bedrooms, including two substantial bedroom suites, each featuring vaulted ceilings, superb en-suite shower rooms featuring Jacuzzi steam showers and extensive built-in storage. The remaining bedrooms are served by a luxurious family bathroom. A rear gallery provides a peaceful retreat, perfect for quiet relaxation.
