This charming house is much more than it appears to be. At first glance, it may look like a typical two-bedroom cottage located in a peaceful street that is only a few minutes' walk from the city centre and riverside walks. However, this is not the case. This house is spread over four floors and has two separate garden areas.

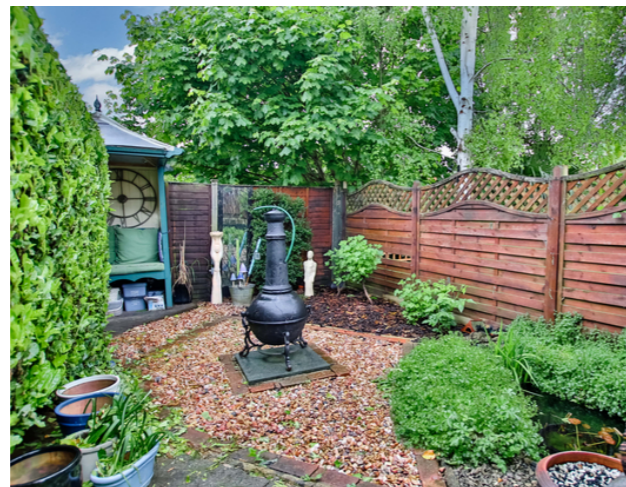

The ground floor comprises of a living room facing the front of the house, which leads through to the kitchen/diner, with a bathroom also located on this level.

The first floor has two double bedrooms.

The basement has been tanked and could be used as a home office, a gin palace, or even a cinema room. The attic room is currently being used as an office space.

The garden adjacent to the house is mainly laid to lawn, and the gated access leads to a peaceful and quiet garden where you can relax and unwind.
