Description

Beautifully refurbished in 2015, The Almshouse was built in 1843 in a secret corner of the north side of the city, only 15 minutes from the M4. This charming, historic two–bedroom cottage nestles in a tranquil corner of Bath but is only ten minutes’ stroll from the city centre, offering a secluded home within a tiny, private Bath community. There is a bus opposite, which takes you into the centre every 15 minutes, but also easy residents’ parking (by permit), as well as some free spaces for visitors.

The spacious main bedroom looks over gardens towards St. Stephen’s Church; the second bedroom can be made up as a single or twin–bedded room. The original features have been carefully preserved, but this charming house lives comfortably in the 21st century, with everything from a discreet utility area and Harvey Jones kitchen, to ultra–fast broadband. The eat–in kitchen can easily seat four or five people, and the private courtyard is perfect for enjoying morning coffee or an evening aperitif.
