The Property

Built in 1967 and featured in several design magazines at the time for its innovative design and practical layout, the house has been updated in recent years by the current owners and continues to provide extremely effective accommodation offering both flexibility and glorious views from all rooms across its own gardens and countryside beyond.

Set at the end of a long drive the house is mostly clad in beautifully silvered cedar which combines striking lines with a softness that blends effortlessly into the landscape.

The front door opens to an entrance hall, beyond which lies an exceptionally spacious atrium providing access to the living rooms and bedroom wing.

Of particular note is the spectacular hexagonal sitting room with full height glazed windows on three sides providing panoramic southerly views over the garden and flooding the interior with light. This room has a particularly modern atmosphere with an open fireplace adding warmth in winter months.

There is also a superb kitchen/family room with a dual aspect giving views across both front and rear gardens and featuring a range of fitted units and integrated appliances as well as a central island incorporating a breakfast bar. The family room, currently arranged with a dining table and easy chairs features a wood burning stove and interacts perfectly with the kitchen and together make an ideal space for relaxing or entertaining. Beyond the kitchen is a rear hall with back door, WC and utility room with work surface, cupboards, sink and space under the countertops for a washing machine and freezer.

Up a few steps from the central atrium is the bedroom wing with a single corridor providing access to four bedrooms. There are three bright double bedrooms on the south side of the house which enjoy views over the gardens, and all have built in wardrobes. There is a further fourth bedroom or study with views to the front garden a shower room and a separate bathroom.

Also from the atrium, steps lead down to a lower ground floor where there is an extremely flexible space currently used as an office/gym which has French doors onto the garden. Off this room is a very generous store room. This space provides great potential to create a self-contained annexe. There is also a boiler room and a further store room providing access to the integral double garage which has an electrically operated up and over door and workshop area.

The house has been carefully designed to minimise its carbon footprint and features both an air source heat pump and solar panels contributing to efficient provision of both heating and electricity. The heat pump (installed in 2020) qualifies for quarterly Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI) payments (currently £1,803.32 per year, effective from July 2024) and increasing in line with RPI annually. The RHI is paid for 7 years from installation with just the need for a simple online declaration.

Grounds & Gardens

The gardens beautifully frame the house and have been designed to provide a delightful outlook from all principal rooms. A long drive leads from the road to a brick paviour parking area adjacent to the house and garage.

To the side of the drive and extending away from the front of the house is a large area of level lawn with mature hedging at the boundary.

To the rear of the house lie the formal gardens which form an idyllic rural oasis that is unexpected in such a convenient location. From both the kitchen/family room and sitting room, doors lead out to a wide south facing terrace which enjoys sun throughout the day. A lower terrace, also bathed in sun, is accessible from the office/gym.

Beyond the terrace lie further level lawn gardens with mature planting and hedges at the border and specimen cypress tree. The gardens are separated from the meadows to the south by a post and rail fence but thanks to their clever design, blend seamlessly with the open countryside stretching as far as the eye can see across the grounds of the luxury Chewton Glen Hotel.
