Aldingham is situated adjacent to the A5087 Coast Road, overlooking Morecambe Bay and is a desirable place to live and visit with a number of stopping off points and beach access. It is a rural parish which includes other nearby villages such as Baycliff, Leece & Gleaston and has a population of 1,105 (2011 Census), a historical church, residential care home and an attractive beach/coastline.

The village of Bardsea is around 2 miles to the north and is home to Ulverston Golf Club, a popular Buddhist temple and meditation centre as well as Birkrigg Common offering a number of walking trails. Local facilities include The Farmers which is a public house and restaurant at Baycliff where there is also a small post office, a green and playpark.

Ulverston has a population of 11,678 (2011 Census) and is a popular market town offering a wide range of local retail and leisure services, Booths and Aldi supermarkets as well as a Marks and Spencer Food Hall. From Aldingham, the A5087 Coast Road travels north through Bardsea and provides a direct route into Ulverston, eventually connecting up with the A590. It also travels south through Newbiggin down to Rampside which is around 5 miles away and then bears northwest into the Roose area of Barrow-in-Furness and west into the town centre.
