Description

This charming Grade II listed former clergy residence stands proudly in the heart of the picturesque village of Beckington. Full of character and history, this beautiful home has been thoughtfully updated, seamlessly blending original features with modern comforts.

The welcoming entrance hall, with its stunning tiled flooring, leads to a spacious formal Georgian style drawing room. Here, high ceilings, an open fireplace with a woodburning stove and sash windows with original shutters create a sense of elegance and warmth. The ground floor also offers a practical utility room, a downstairs cloakroom, and a second reception room, all overlooking the lovely gardens. The dining room flows effortlessly into a contemporary bespoke kitchen, complete with high quality units, a central island and bi-folding doors that open onto a south facing patio terrace, perfect for al fresco dining and entertaining.

Upstairs, the first floor boasts 4 well proportioned bedrooms, a family bathroom and plenty of storage space. Stairs lead to the expansive attic, which has previously received planning permission for conversion. Currently divided into two generous loft areas, this space presents further potential for development.

Externally, the property is accessed via a driveway offering parking for multiple vehicles. To the rear, the south facing garden is a standout feature being mature, private and enclosed by traditional stone walls, offering a peaceful retreat filled with established planting.

Having undergone extensive improvements, including rewiring, a new central heating system, and an impressive rear extension, this property presents an exciting opportunity for further enhancement. Offered with no onward chain, it’s an absolute must-see for those seeking a blend of period charm and modern living.
