Baldock is a small market town founded by the Knights Templar around 1148 on the site of an earlier Iron Age and Roman settlement. More recently it has been an important staging post between London and the North East and some of that history is still evident today in the towns design and architecture.

Nestled between Cambridge, 23 miles away and London just 39 miles, Baldock has a mainline train station which provides a regular service between these two cities and with easy access to the A10 and A1 makes this an ideal location for commuting.

Baldock has a range of interesting and independent shops selling a variety of products and produce including a popular family butchers, bakery & small independent cafes. It is also home to a large Tesco supermarket. There is an excellent selection of restaurants and takeaways supplying food from around the world. The town has many regular traditions such of the weekly Charter Market, annual Autumn Charter Fair.

Baldock also provides a range of highly acclaimed schools for all ages along with a sports centre/gym and for those looking for a peaceful evening and weekend there are lovely country walks in the surrounding area.
