Local Information

Kingsclere is a great community which benefits from a long-established, friendly village culture with many local organisations and volunteer groups. Much of the village is a designated conservation area with 68 listed buildings plus 38 more throughout the remainder of the Parish, which are listed as being of Special or Architectural or Historical Interest. The village boasts its own library, fire station, police station, three churches, health centre and primary school along with a comprehensive range of shops. There are also three wonderful old inns and an Italian restaurant patronised by Lord Lloyd Webber (who lives close by on the Sydmonton Estate). Other local facilities include the village club, the Holding field and the Fieldgate Centre which lies on the outskirts of the village and adjoins the rugby and football grounds. The village also has an extensive network of green lanes and paths, glades and the Kingsclere stream. Treasured areas known by the villagers, such as 'the rec.', 'the ducks' and 'shepherds steps' are usually overlooked by the casual visitor, but add greatly to village life. Kingsclere is on the Hampshire/Berkshire border and is surrounded by beautiful countryside. It is equidistant from the towns of Newbury and Basingstoke and lies close to the A339 with an hourly bus service to both. Each has mainline stations providing direct access to London. Newbury goes into Paddington, and Basingstoke serves Waterloo. The nearest local station is at Overton.
