WYMONDLEY BURY

Step Inside:

Nestled amidst countryside, this magnificent Grade I listed former manor house stands as a testament to timeless elegance, steeped in history and meticulously preserved. This house boasts a vast trove of living spaces which are both versatile and accommodating for the modern lifestyle. The downstairs includes; a spacious sitting room, elegant drawing room, cozy family room (which also works perfectly as a home office), morning/playroom, relaxing garden room (currently used as a home gym) and a grand reception hall with an inglenook fireplace. Each space exudes warmth and character.

The kitchen/breakfast room serves as the beating heart of this home, with the added benefit of a pantry, seamlessly blending traditional charm with contemporary convenience, perfect for entertaining. Retreat to one of the 10 bedrooms, each a sanctuary of comfort and style. Adorned with stunning outlooks, every bedroom offers a serene escape. The current owners, with a large family, have ingeniously repurposed additional bedrooms as dressing rooms, a testament to the property's adaptability. The master suite is a haven of tranquillity, with an en-suite bathroom and a luxurious walk-through dressing room space.

This magnificent property offers a rare opportunity to own a piece of history which first dates back to the late 1300's, it is rumoured that King Henry VIII wife Anne Boleyn once took residence here.

There is an abundance of space and storage here, including a cellar & full height loft space. The garden room/gym also offers the possibility of conversion into a granny annex, utilising the family room and storage area.

With its versatile living spaces, enchanting bedrooms, and idyllic surroundings, this estate offers a lifestyle of luxury, refinement and endless possibilities, not one to be missed. Schedule a viewing today and prepare to be captivated!

Seller Insight

“ Wymondley Bury is a magnificent manor house that began life in the fourteenth century and is now a superb family home with all the comforts of twenty first century living, that seamlessly combine with charming original features, to create a very special property.

Six years ago, the present owners were attracted by the space in the house and the fact that is divided into three wings, making it perfect for their four children and any extended family. The six acres of land gave the feeling of a rural retreat, and they loved the tranquillity and the sense of being secluded, but only a short walk into Little Wymondley village and a short drive into Hitchin.

Wymondley Bury offers luxury of space and great comfort and has given the owners a delightful lifestyle. They say it is impossible to choose a favourite room as they are all light flooded, large and welcoming, and the many open fires add to the sense of warmth and hospitality. The reception hall is one much enjoyed room that has been the setting for Christmas celebrations, games, and parties, where the attractive settings and size give events a wow factor.

The kitchen is the busy hub of the house, where the big Aga and the storage in the walk in pantry, combine to help in the hosting of large dinner parties. Eighteen people can be seated in the dining room and with a fire blazing and light flickering across the beams there is a sense of the timelessness in the room.

There are many delightful places to settle and relax in the house, with views into the courtyard and main gardens. There are rural views from all ten bedrooms, and the dual aspect from the master bedroom suite allows you to look across the green sweep of fields and woodlands beyond.

The property was originally moated, and the six acres of land consists of a garden, lawn, menage and paddock, a rear field and woodland. It has brought much pleasure to the family with camping, parties in the woods, including a fairy party when the children were small. There is a choice of walks and many spots to sit and savour the beauty and peace of your surroundings.

Little Wymondley is a friendly village, with two pubs, infant and primary school and an extensive list of clubs and activities in the Little, and nearby, Great Wymondley. Stevenage and Hitchin are both within two miles of the village and from Hitchin station there is a fast thirty minute service into London, whilst Luton airport is twenty minutes away.

Wymondley Bury is a magnificent home throughout and the owners are going to miss the space, the gardens, the serenity of the surroundings, and the relaxed sophistication that has been perfect for family life and entertaining. They take away very many happy memories.*
