Church St is a quiet backwater of the historic Old Town area of Poole which is home to St James Church and numerous other period homes some of which date back to medieval times but largely the construction is early 18th century. The Quay is just round the corner and Poole High Street runs parallel with access around 200m away leading along to the shops and other amenities. The mainline station is within 1 km and the bus station is a similar distance. The sandy bathing beaches are approximately 3 miles away and Poole Harbour has 8 islands within it including Brownsea Island which is well worth a visit.
